

BANKERS LIKELY TO ENTER PROTEST

They Will Meet in Chicago To-Day to Discuss Currency Bill.

MORE THAN 250 TO ATTEND

Dawes Fears Banking System Will Be Thrown Into Politics.

Chicago, Ill., August 21.—Protest against the administration currency bill is expected to be the result of a conference of bankers from all over the country, which will begin here to-morrow. Amendments, probably will be recommended to eliminate some of the features of the Glass-Steagall bill now pending in Congress.

More than 250 bankers are expected to attend the conference. Among them will be members of the currency commission of the American Bankers' Association, presidents of the various state bankers' associations, presidents of banks, representing clearing-houses and other representative bankers. The conference is to be under the auspices of the bankers' currency commission, which has invited the financiers of the country to come together to unite on a plan of action concerning the proposed currency bill.

A large delegation of Eastern bankers and a number of Western bankers are expected to be in Washington conferring with Secretary McAdoo are expected here for the meetings. A. B. Hepburn, of New York, head of the commission; Colonel Frederick Farnsworth, of New York, secretary; William Woodward, president Hanover National Bank, of New York, representing New York banks; and George M. Reynolds, of Chicago, are among the prominent financiers expected to take part in the meetings.

The principal objection of the bankers to the bill as it stands was stated to-day by Charles G. Dawes, delegated to represent the American Bankers' Association, to be the Federal reserve board members who would be appointed by the President.

"If this bill is passed, our banking system will be projected again into politics," said Mr. Dawes. "The great system of national banks is part of the fabric of business. No greater calamity could come than an alleged measure of reform which would cripple the banking system. It is dangerous to tamper with it. Capital must awake now to the menace and not defer action until it is too late."

Amendments Voted Down.—Both the House Democratic caucus and the conference of Democratic members of the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency considered the administration currency bill to-day.

One important amendment was voted into the bill in the caucus, which was adopted until to-morrow, with the Dawes amendment to prohibit any man from being a director of more than one bank, pending. Representative William H. Clegg, of Arkansas, declared at the close of the session that if the caucus should vote down the amendment it would furnish the Republicans with a campaign slogan for a change in the Democratic party had surrendered to Cleveland H. Dodge and Cyrus McCormick, who had made heavy contributions to the Wilson campaign fund.

There was no real test of so-called "insurgent" strength at any time to-day, but all important amendments proposed were voted down overwhelmingly, the vote in one case being 21 to 12.

Chairman Owen, of one Senate Banking Committee, issued a formal statement to-day, reiterating that impression that he was opposed to the administration currency bill were "without foundation" and declared himself in favor of the measure.

"It would be stupid to say that it is impossible to improve it in any particular," he added.

FORCES OF THAW TUBBLANT OVER SECOND VICTORY

Mr. and Mrs. George Lauder Carnegie, brother-in-law and sister of the prisoner, soon followed Dr. Evans at the jail. They held a long conference, and occasionally Thaw could be heard loudly laughing.

After his visitors left he had his luncheon sent up from the Magor House, whence came all his meals. The prisoner rests well, according to his early and late riser between 6 and 7 o'clock in the morning. This is very little later than the rising hour he was accustomed to at Matteawan. His appetite is good, and he wastes no time in sitting down to his meals as soon as they arrive.

During the day he enjoys himself in reading or writing, and occasionally exercises by pacing the floor of the hospital ward for a considerable period at a time. He is continually smoking or biting an unlighted cigar, and since his incarceration here has kept his guards well supplied.

It is understood that during his visit to-day, his sister advised him to do no talking unless absolutely necessary. She told him that if he discussed his trial he might betray the people who helped him to get away. The prisoner promised to obey her wishes.

Thaw also promised to follow the directions of his lawyers in all things. A new chief of counsel, F. J. McCune, of Montreal, has been engaged, and arrived to-day. Up to that time Thaw had persisted in directing the lawyers' actions, but McCune at once took hold of the situation, and Thaw accepted it in accordance with the wishes of his sister.

Counsel Called Together.—All of the counsel were called together this evening by Mr. McCune, the others at the conference being Charles D. White and Colonel H. R. Frazer. Mr. McCune said that he would have no statement to make until after the conference, if at all.

The feeling of the French-Canadian community here is all for Thaw. Speaking for the people this afternoon, the Sherbrooke Record published the following:

"If the illegality of the arrest of Thaw is established, there are some good Britishers who believe the fair thing to do is to take Thaw back to the little hotel, and there set him free. 'Reset the stage exactly as it was when he was illegally apprehended. The sleuths upon the track to be set at liberty for ever. For a change in the Democratic party had surrendered to Cleveland H. Dodge and Cyrus McCormick, who had made heavy contributions to the Wilson campaign fund."

"If Thaw is to be finally disposed of according to law, he should not be handicapped in his defense by illegal acts against him in the name of the law in the detention."

Will Stand by Them.—Mr. Carnegie later announced that Thaw would stand by the men who helped him to escape.

"None of the family is aware of this," he said. "I am sure that he is planning to escape. He did it on his own responsibility without letting any one of us know."

Is there any chance of a reconciliation with Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw if Thaw is freed and his sanity established? Mr. Carnegie was asked.

"No, Harry has the greatest amount of sympathy for her, but he is done with her forever. I think also, that it is not necessary for either Harry or his family to take care of Evelyn Thaw financially. She is making plenty of money and is able to take care of herself as Harry is able to take care of himself."

"Has Harry any malice towards any one, and how about the reputed death list he drew up of those he intended to kill?"

"Harry has not any malice towards any one. The supposed death list is a forgery. Harry never had a death list."

Thaw's notable array of counsel was increased to-night by the arrival of Charles J. Shurtliff, one of the best known lawyers in the United States. The report that Thaw's lawyers will make an effort to make him out sane was borne out to-night when Thaw was subjected to a minute examination by Dr. Evans, and three local physicians reported to have declared that Thaw is undoubtedly insane.

All of Thaw's counsel are Conservatives and are among the most influential men in the Province of Quebec. J. W. Greenhills, K. C., was also added to-day to the array of counsel. Thaw, perhaps the most eminent criminal lawyer in Canada, is now in jail.

Jail Well Guarded.—To-night there is an armed guard patrolling the terrace before the jail, and a high-powered automobile was in the shadows ready to convey Sheriff Hornbeck, of Dutchess County, in pursuit in case Thaw attempts to leave the jail in any manner.

"There is nothing but a flimsy bar and a short leap between Thaw and liberty," said Sheriff Hornbeck. "Thaw has shown his ability to escape from one institution, and I do not propose to give him another opportunity."

"Thaw has none of the most active lawyers in Canada directing his movements, and I must be ready for any eventuality. If he should be released on bail I shall not leave him day or night. The moment the crosses the American border he will be in the hands of the district attorney and I would arrest him on our warrant on the charge of conspiracy."

"If he should secure bail and attempt to jump, I shall have the immigration inspectors seize him as soon as he leaves Sherbrooke County. My guard is at the jail now, and I intend that it shall remain there night and day until the very end of these proceedings."

"We have no present intention of applying for bail," said Attorney White. "I do not even know that we could secure it."

Thaw said to-night that the guard about the jail was unnecessary. "I don't want to escape," he added. "I am satisfied here, where I am securing a greatly needed rest. I feel that I have gained a big point to-day."

CAPITAL OF VERMONT NOW BELIEVED DOMINION WILL SET HIM DOWN AT MONTPELIER, CAPITAL OF STATE HE LAST PASSED THROUGH.

Now Believed Dominion Will Set Him Down at Montpelier, Capital of State He Last Passed Through.

[By Associated Press.]
Sherbrooke, Quebec, August 21.—Until Wednesday of next week, barring unforeseen developments, Harry Kendall Thaw will remain in the Sherbrooke jail. On that day he is to be arraigned in the Superior Court on a writ of habeas corpus. Between now and that time his lawyers of Canada will endeavor to perfect plans, not to thwart deportation, but to submit to it gracefully to a point selected by Thaw.

This, in brief, was the status to-night of Matteawan's fugitive, arrested Tuesday near Coaticook, Quebec, and committed to jail here on a defective warrant. Ignorant of the moves made by his lawyers, Thaw spent his time comparing the length of the narrow corridor in the Sherbrooke jail, and was not even aware that the writ of habeas corpus in his case was served on the jailer this afternoon, and that but for a timely telephone message he would have been produced in court to-day with the bench vacant.

Error Due to Hasty.—This, incident, variously described as a blunder, a case of absent-mindedness and an error due to hurry, arose after Judge Globensky failed to specify in writing that the writ was returnable before him next Wednesday. He had set the date in chambers, but the writer, reading "instantly" where served on the jailer, set that official into instant action, and he had called a carriage and ordered Thaw to dress for an outing when a telephone message from the judge informed him that the latter was leaving for Montreal not to return here as a circuit judge until next week.

Meanwhile District Attorney General, of Dutchess County, N. Y.; Deputy Attorney General, of Albany; and others primarily interested in getting Stanford White's slayer across the border, seized on the possibility of Thaw's immediate production, and sought to find another judge before whom to arraign him. But Mr. LaForce, governor of the jail, declined to surrender the prisoner until he had consulted Sheriff Aylmer.

The sheriff, after reading the writ carefully, said that, while no time for its return was stated, he had understood from the court that Wednesday was the day, and he "allowed" that Thaw had better stay in jail. Thaw's spouse, meanwhile, that the New York authorities were trying to kidnap Thaw, that an automobile was ready to wait him to the New York line, that an open clash, perhaps in street battles, was imminent. As a matter of fact, the officers from New York were as well advised as the others. They had protested against postponing the proceedings until Wednesday, but their protest failed, and decided to bide their time, hoping that when arraigned, Thaw would be released on a full and complete acquittal. As a matter of fact, rather than an undesirable.

Difficulties of Jail.—The governor of the jail, explaining his difficulties to-night, said: "I am representing myself to the judge Globensky, and to the telephone this afternoon, and said Thaw would not need to appear in court before Wednesday. It was not entirely settled as to time, because I thought he said something about to-morrow. As a matter of fact, I rather doubted that it was Judge Globensky."

"I was confused, particularly when I received another call. This time it was from a man who told me to 'get under cover, because something is going to happen.'"

"Half an hour later the bailiff appeared and served habeas corpus papers on me, saying that I was to deliver Thaw immediately. I was as near bewildered then as I ever have been in my life. Within half an hour, I had been told to produce him Wednesday, to-morrow and immediately."

"I found a crowd outside, and there were rumors that the prisoner was going to be taken away. But, of course, these were untrue, and I finally straightened matters out by conferring with the sheriff."

Thaw's lawyers said to-night they were well satisfied with the events of to-day. They feel now that Thaw's fate so far as the Canadian authorities may influence it, is practically settled. The departure for Ottawa early this morning of W. L. Shurtliff was the first step in a plan to procure Thaw's removal to Canada without prolonged legal proceedings.

All of the lawyers profess to believe that the Minister of the Interior will accede to the request that Thaw be permitted to remain in the United States in return for surrendering without further protest to deportation.

Those who are advising Thaw, among them some of the ablest criminal lawyers in the United States, are confident that the two States given by competent attorneys of this city to Thaw, if it was pointed out that the warrant charging Thaw with conspiracy, issued by the authorities of Dutchess County, New York, was not valid, would be maintained and Thaw set free or quashed and the prisoner returned to jail.

It was held that if the question were brought up in the State where extradition was asked that Thaw being insane could not have committed crime, that this question could not be decided by the Federal authorities, but that the question would be for the New York State authorities to decide. A decision of the United States Supreme Court in the matter of extradition between States holds that whether the charge brought is legal and whether it is laid in the indictment is a judicial question to be decided by the Federal authorities, and that if Thaw was committed and not by the executive authority of the State upon which the extradition was asked.

Thaw, once brought back in this manner, the question would then come up in the State of New York as to whether, being a lunatic under the laws of that State, he could be tried on the charge of conspiracy.

Technicalities of Law Being Searched Out for Reincarceration of Thaw.

New York, August 21.—Examination of the statutes of New Hampshire and Vermont does not reveal authority for the extradition of Thaw from either of these States to New York. On the ground that he is an escaped lunatic, the State of New York could not extradite him to fugitives from justice from another State, who must be charged with a crime committed in that State.

This was the interpretation of the statutes of the two States given by competent attorneys of this city to Thaw. It was pointed out that the warrant charging Thaw with conspiracy, issued by the authorities of Dutchess County, New York, was not valid, would be maintained and Thaw set free or quashed and the prisoner returned to jail.

It was held that if the question were brought up in the State where extradition was asked that Thaw being insane could not have committed crime, that this question could not be decided by the Federal authorities, but that the question would be for the New York State authorities to decide. A decision of the United States Supreme Court in the matter of extradition between States holds that whether the charge brought is legal and whether it is laid in the indictment is a judicial question to be decided by the Federal authorities, and that if Thaw was committed and not by the executive authority of the State upon which the extradition was asked.

Thaw, once brought back in this manner, the question would then come up in the State of New York as to whether, being a lunatic under the laws of that State, he could be tried on the charge of conspiracy.

Washington, August 21.—The Treasury Department today began making deposits of the additional $20,000,000 government funds raised by the sale of the new agricultural States to aid in crop movement. The first deposits were made in the reserve cities in the Southern States, among which it is unofficially stated, were Baltimore, Md.; Richmond, Atlanta, Ga.; and Memphis, Tenn., the three latter each receiving $10,000,000.

The apportionment of the funds has been completed according to information at the department. It was stated that the largest deposits would be made with the national banks at Chicago, being the largest of the reserve cities in the Southern States. The next largest deposits are to be made in St. Louis, with Baltimore second in the Southern States, among which it is unofficially stated, were Baltimore, Md.; Richmond, Atlanta, Ga.; and Memphis, Tenn., the three latter each receiving $10,000,000.

No official announcement of the amount sent to these cities has been made, but unofficially it is stated that the Baltimore will receive between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000, and that Chicago and St. Louis will divide in the neighborhood of $15,000,000.

MARKED FOR DEATH BY "LOAN SHARKS"

Representative Johnson Says His Life Was Threatened by Those Who Opposed Bill.

Washington, August 21.—Representative Ben Johnson, of Kentucky, told the lobby investigators to-day that the passage of the Federal "loan shark" law was marked with daily threats against his life. He introduced an affidavit by a former Capitol policeman who swore that another former policeman threatened to kill him.

Testimony has developed that the loan sharks fought the Federal law with a slash fund of $12,000. Representative J. T. McDermott, of Illinois, was charged by I. H. McMichael, a former House employee, with having received $7,500.

Martin M. Mulhall, late lobbyist for the National Association of Manufacturers, refreshed by a week's vacation, took the stand before the House Committee again to-day. He repeated some of his testimony before the Senate Committee relative to efforts to control committees in Congress which dealt with labor legislation.

Representative Willis, of Ohio, questioned the witness sharply about his statements in regard to the make-up of the Judiciary Committee of the House in 1909-10. Mulhall swore that the committee was composed of representatives of the City Council, Chamber of Commerce, bank officials and Order of Elks, reached the city this morning on the 9:15 train, and was taken directly to the family residence, South Sycamore Street.

In the special car with the committee of escort were Mrs. Cameron and Dr. J. G. Rennie, who went abroad with Mayor Cameron, and who returned on the steamship Bremer with the body, as were also several near relatives of the dead Mayor, who met the funeral party in New York. Mayor Cameron accompanied by Mrs. Cameron and his physician, left for Pittsburgh on the 9:15 train, where they called on July 5 for Nauheim, Germany, where it was hoped his health would be restored by the famous bath treatment. His condition did not improve, however, and on the morning of Sunday, August 3, he passed away. Though the announcement of his death was not unexpected, it brought shock and grief to the people of Pittsburgh, and that grief will bring forth a more profound and beautiful prime and in the midst of his usefulness.

His services in the Council and as chief executive had been of great benefit to the city, and his usefulness as a citizen was incalculable. The funeral took place this afternoon from Grace Episcopal Church at 5 o'clock, and was attended by a great concourse of people, anxious to testify their respect.

It was one of the largest ever witnessed in Pittsburgh, and hundreds followed the body to the grave in Blainfield Cemetery, gathering around the last resting place to witness the end. The floral tributes were so numerous and beautiful beyond description filling a large space in the church and covering a large space at the grave.

The impressive services were conducted by the Rev. C. Braxton Bryan, D. D., pastor of Grace Church, and Rev. E. P. Dandridge, rector of St. Paul's, and the Rev. Charles R. Stripling, pastor of Tabernacle Presbyterian Church, assisting. The music was sweet and appropriate, consisting of "The Lord's Prayer," "O Solemn Thought," sang as a solo, "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," and "Lead, Kindly Light." At the grave "Peace, Perfect Peace" was sung, and the hymn, "Now the Laborer's Task is O'er," was read by Dr. Bryan.

The following were the pallbearers: Active—Robert Gilliam, Sr., Robert Canabiss, L. A. Rosenstock, Louis Stearns, William King, of Lynchburg; B. J. Thomas, W. L. Venable and N. T. Patterson.

STRAIN TOO GREAT FOR FEET AND KNEES

Showing Signs of Fear She Has Felt Since Escape From Matteawan.

New York, August 21.—Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw is breaking down under the fear that Harry K. Thaw may evade the law and succeed in reaching Europe. There are visible evidences of the strain under which she has been laboring since she escaped from Matteawan last Sunday, when she was seen to-night in that city.

Thaw's declaration from the jail in Sherbrooke that her return to the stage had been a relief, and that she had no intention of leaving life, were called to her attention. "Good God," she exclaimed, "How could that man say he loves me when he would have let me starve in the streets?"

"Do you love me?" she asked. "Love him. I love him as much as he loves me," was her derisive reply. "He wanted to keep me down after I had testified everything that a human being could do for a man, and now he makes this maudlin statement about love."

"He is a paranoiac, and he does not know what love is. He has never known the meaning of it as long as I have known him. As for taking care of me, as any man who loved a woman would do, both he and his mother threw me out after I had saved him from the electric chair."

Mrs. Mary Corley Thaw entered into an agreement with me at the time of the trial to provide me with $10,000 a year on condition that I would conduct the business of our marriage. I did consent and the papers were drawn. Then his mother repudiated it, and I received nothing from him since that time. Before that date I had received $10 a week and my rent. I had to dispose of pictures and some things to save to live, and I finally came to the conclusion that I had something within myself, that I could prove that I possessed the gift of making my own living, which is a gift after all."

"I thank God that I have that gift, or his mother would be jeering at me in the gutter," and Mrs. Thaw broke into tears. "He wanted to spend my life and ruin me," she continued. "He wanted to injure me, and he will bend everything to that end."

"Things will begin to happen when he gets his drink. Any one who thinks Harry Thaw will not be a desperate man when he gets his opportunity will be disappointed. For drink knows nothing of him. I know him. I know him. Judge Jerome knows him. He will be a desperate and dangerous man."

This great strain ought to be ashamed of itself. It is a punishment, and it makes and unmake its institutions. Thaw was permitted liberties that no man in his position had before enjoyed. He did not do it. It has been the Thaw money."

"Do you know that when I used to see him in the Tombs he used to drink Scotch whiskey. Let the Tombs officials deny it if they dare. I know it, and they know it. Harry Thaw told me he could get all the rum he wanted there."
